who had never walked without them, prayed at the grave for some time. Without a moment's hesitation the boy next took his crutches, laid them on the slab and tottered, unaided, but delighted, around the grave. They walked over to the chapel and vanished inside.

Thomas Madden, 12, of Curtis St., Providence, R. I., also walked for the first time after visiting the shrine. He has suffered from birth.

Trains came into the eyes of spectators when little Eugene Reynolds, of Wood Ave., Mattapan, after lying out a few childish prayers under the grave, was asked by his father and mother if he felt he could walk without the brace he has worn on his right leg for two years.

He bravely he unstrapped the heavy iron brace, stood up and took a few steps. His wife and mother, who were in the tree in grief. With the brace in his hand he took another and another step, and then broke into a leaping run.

His mother, pursuing, caught him up to her breast and kissed him in sight of weeping thousands.

Although approximately 75,000 persons were estimated to have visited the cemetery throughout the year, others came last night and at dawn today, sustained by an unshakable faith in the efficacy of the shrine to cure the afflicted who were still kneeling on the damp turf.

The men were the remainder of a much larger throng of pilgrims who had passed to and fro in the darkness before the shrine until long after midnight.

Among crows reported was that of an 18-year-old Dutch girl who walked for the first time in 18 months after a visit to the shrine.

The girl is Miss Laura Moody, an orphan who lives on Hamilton St. An advanced case of paralysis had affected her, and she paralyzed her lower limbs. The physician who was called to the girl, Dr. Edward Leonard of 78 South St., Duxbury, called as soon as she reached home. He was astounded at the complete recovery of Miss Moody and announced to the press that he could find no trace of the acute arthritis with which she had been afflicted.

On this site of the grave, cemetery officials announced, will be erected a great shrine, as a fitting tribute and memorial to the young unknown priest, whose name has been invoked in the prayers of a multitude of believers.

The new shrine, it was promised, will live in beauty the rest of the century, and will be a pilgrimage center for the disabled and disabled persons through out America.

OTHERS CLAIM CURES

Frank Cotter, 15, of Utah St., East Boston, who, it is claimed, has been paralyzed since infancy, walked normally after praying at the grave.

Louie Carlsons, 8, of Vale St., South Boston, was taken to the shrine in his mother's arms. He said he had been a helpless cripple since birth, and had never walked after his visit at the grave. He walked his little feet firmly, stood without support, and lifted his arms.

A paralyzed man, Joseph Stella, 40, it is said, has been incurable for 18 years, visited the grave and then walked for more than a mile without help.

Mr. James Camers, who said he had not walked without crutches since he was 12 years old, left his crutches on the grave, and walked to his automobile.

Little Charles Dandrea was carried to the grave by his father, Frank Dandrea. His entire right side has been paralyzed for years, but he had prayed he stood between his parents and walked forward while they held his hands.

VENDEES APPEAR

Throughout the day the steady surge of crowds poured through the cemetery. Two great double lines, leading for a distance of half a mile between the cemetery entrance and the grave, were kept moving a detail of police.

A line of commensal was made up yesterday, with a variety of taxicabs on hand beyond the shrine, and many of the taxicabs and soft drinks crying their wares.

On the grave itself was a great wire basket heaped and overflowing with bills. Other taxicabs, flowers and jewelry on the slab.

Prince George Kept to Room by Chill

London, Nov. 12 (AP)—Prince George, youngest son of King George and Queen Mary, was confined to his room today with a chill. He has cancelled his engagements.

The Prince is the fifth child of the British monarch, and the fourth son. He recently was forced to leave the British navy, for which he served as a midshipman, because the Foreign Office feared for his health.

great a percentage of the people under the influence of liquor. "I saw young girls sitting in the laps of their escorts. One girl was drunk and asleep with her head on a boy's shoulder. Two other girls in particular were very drunk. "One man about 70 was holding the hand of a 13-year-old girl."

PLACES OVERCROWDED

Capt. Patterson made it clear that he did not want the board to believe he was trying to show the Palace D.O. and liquor, but that he was pointing out the management should watch conditions more carefully.

"In the future it is my intention to pay a great deal more attention to this type of place," he said. "In case of fire there is a doubt in my mind whether all could have escaped although the fire escapes were in good condition."

Miss Mary E. Driscoll, member of the board, inquired as to the general reputation of the place and Capt. Patterson replied that there had been no complaints.

He admitted to a question of Arthur J. Beltrami, another member, that overcrowded conditions were general about the city on the night in question.

Special Officer Fred Holstein, a member of the squad, who had pocketed a bottle of liquor found under a table at which a girl and a young man sat, inexcusably, and that upon leaving he felt a hand in his pocket and turning, saw the girl trying to remove the bottle. The young man also tried to get the liquor and he spent some time questioning him, he said.

Stephen Hone, manager of the Palace D.O., was asked by David Montague, chairman of the board, whether he had noticed girls sitting in the laps of their escorts—"not that that is the worst thing, in the world to be doing," the chairman added.

Hone said he did see one girl, but that that sort of thing was always stopped immediately.

"The girls," Hone said, "were talking to the boys."

Asked if he allowed bootleggers to ply their trade in the restaurant, he replied in the negative, declaring he had one experience and then hired a policeman in uniform to keep out objectionable people.

DISPLAYS FOUR BOTTLES.

Capt. Patterson produced before the board four bottles of liquor found beneath tables at the Barn. The analysis of each showed at least 24 per cent alcohol.

Hone said he said, there were too many people under the influence of liquor, and especially young girls. The Barn also was overcrowded, he testified.

On the subject of the girls in the place, told the board he kept liquor laws and on general conduct, but that the Halloween crowd was greater than he expected. He was forced to hire two extra waiters, he said, and the seated liquor was found under their tables.

The board took the complaints under advisement.

to offset their charge that she murdered two children. She was compelled to face hundreds of her former neighbors, and listen to their threatening comments, when she was taken to the Camden house in which the two little children of Alan Rogers, a Woodbury insurance man, had died.

For 40 minutes she was kept in a police automobile outside the Camden house where four-year-old Dorothy Rogers came to her end, from what Miss Parks describes in her confession as a "slap" on the face.

When she was taken to a house on Burns St., where she was killed by a fall down the stairs.

While officials were in the first house visited, checking up on the narrative the woman has given of the way in which Dorothy died, fully two hundred men, women and children milled around the car in which the prisoner was seated with a detective gazing upon her intently and alternately making comments which she could plainly hear.

RETAINS HER CALM

Miss Parks, however, paid no attention to them. At no time did she lose the calmness that has marked her demeanor since she came into the hands of the Camden police, although on several occasions she was crowded close to the car she drew back and tried to avoid their gaze.

Despite an all-night grilling Miss Parks refused to admit she was a baby murderer.

At one point in the intensive examination, detectives thought they had broken through the woman's icy composure.

"There was another baby I had charge of in 1924—a three-year-old baby," she shouted.

"What did you do with it? What did you do with it?" "I used that baby to get money from men," she answered.

"What did you do with it? What did you do with it?" "I used that baby to get money from men," she answered.

PLAN AIR PORTER TO CARRY 800 OVERSEAS

New Haven Engineers Asked to Bid on a Plane With 500 Feet Wing Spread

Evidence of the existence of a project for spanning the Atlantic with a line of flying lines carrying 800 passengers and a crew of 100 was revealed today.

President Westcott of Westcott & Magoon, engineers of the New Haven airport, at New Haven, said that within 30 days his company had received a request from an American organization to build an American airplane for a flyboat capable of transporting 800 persons between London and New York in quick time.

The boat would have a great wingspread, with 12 or more motors developing 20,000 horsepower.

The New Haven concern, which refused to reveal the identity of the other company, has been asked to compute stresses on framework and German power experts have been requested to compute number and size of motors.

According to Westcott the built-in plan for experimental work, each in cost about $3,000,000, with a California airplane firm, suggesting it will be wrecked. If the boats prove successful, it is planned to put them on duty runs between London and New York.

Parted by Her Death

Paul Capron Says the Soldier Students Need All Their Time for Studies

Write an army? Which should it be? Capron at West Point may not have both. Paul Capron, Jr., whose engagement with Marguerite Gillespie, daughter of a colonel, was called off by his death, was the first of his army career, had written for the New York Evening Journal a dispatch in which he said, "what they mean to the cadets, whether they are fair."

Capron posed the first few days of his honeymoon at his summer home at West Point.

Capron has joined the Evening Journal staff. Following is his first story, made facts for which have been furnished by his own romance.

New York, Nov. 12.—No cadet shall be married. It is a rule of the United States Military Academy. They further state that if any man who is married to a cadet shall marry such an act shall be considered equivalent to a resignation.

The regulations do not question the right of a cadet to marry. They simply make it impossible for him to marry and remain a cadet. They give him that choice between married life and a military career.

West Point's job is to train a man as thoroughly as possible in four years to take his place as an officer in the army. It is, naturally, intensive training.

In the middle ages monks were required to be bachelors. It was felt that a man could not serve his church and his country at the same time. The authorities at West Point feel much the same way about it. The routine at the academy requires all of a cadet's time.

dividend of $1, 37.50 per share, and the new common stock of $20.00 per share, was placed on a 22 annual basis.

Total sales on the New York Stock Exchange, including inactive issues, were $45,777,000, or 3,367,100 shares.

NEW LOW RECORDS

Prices of leading stocks broke sharply to new low levels for the year when the brief rally which followed an opening decline quickly petered out. American Express, making its first appearance since Jan. 1, dropped 106 1/2 shares to the previous quotation of $200.

New low records for 1929 were established by nearly a hundred stocks. The list included U. S. Steel common, American Can, General Electric, International Business Machines, Western Union, May Department Stores, Gillette Safety Razor, Commercial Solvents Corp., Republic Northern Pacific, Central Railroad of New Jersey, New York Central and Montreal, Pacific preferred.

In the secondary market, Westinghouse Electric fell from $125 to $110 1/2. U. S. Steel common from $135.50 to $124.50, and American Telephone from $29.75 to $29.25. People Gas dropped 1/2 share.

Partial recoveries took place from the low levels in the last hour.

BANKERS INACTIVE.

Today's break, like most of those which have preceded it, was not associated with any development in the day's business or financial news. Wall Street brokers generally, however, were in evidence that distress liquidation, which has been overhauling the market, has not yet been completed. Each fresh flurry of seller's work has been met by a corresponding buying of those who immediately be strengthened.

The New York banking group, organized when the first big break occurred on October 24, to assure an orderly market, apparently is making no effort to stem the decline of the group's fate. No meetings have been held since the first big break, although its participants have kept in close touch with the market and with each other.

The call money rate was advanced at 8 per cent, and time money rates held steady at the same figure.

WOMAN STENOGRAPHER GAGGED, ROBBED, LEFT TO DIE IN FLAMES

Young and Old, Lamé, Halt and Blind Kneel in Prayer for Relief at Malden Tomb of the Rev. Patrick Power

This man was one of many of advanced years who knelt in prayer for a long time today at the grave of the Rev. Patrick Power in Holy Cross Cemetery in Malden, where many cures of ills and crippled conditions have been reported in the last two weeks.

Among these supplicants at the newly created shrine are several who have been there daily for several days and some who kept an all night vigil. It is an ever changing throng that one sees in the cemetery, many on crutches, others in wheel chairs and still others carried bodily by relatives and friends to the sacred spot wherein ill hope to gain relief.

Robbers Gag Typist, Set Office Afire

Wintrop, Me., Nov. 12.—Two armed men bound and gagged a lone stenographer in the office of the Wintrop Mills Co. today, rifled a safe they had forced her to open and set fire to the office where they fled.

Mrs. Irene Barry, 30, the victim, was found unconscious 15 minutes later by Miss Dorothy Maxwell, who saw smoke pouring from an open window of the mill office.

When revived Mrs. Barry said she had been held up by the two men, both threatening her with guns, when she opened up the office where they fled.

The men were blind in the entry the outer door to which is left open all night.

They forced her into the office and, threatening to kill her if she did not comply, forced her to open the safe.

There was no money in the safe but the men removed the payroll list, and turning their attention again to the stenographer, stripped two diamond rings from her fingers and took $5 from her pocketbook.

With a length of rope they then bound her hands and feet and gagged her with a handkerchief. She struggled in vain to prevent them from tying her, she said.

One of the men then dumped the

The explosion which caused the death of five men in the metropolitan water supply tunnel in Rutland was caused either by a falling rock or by the dropping of a piece of dynamite by one of the carriers.

Find 2 Books Written in Fr. Power's Hand

Worcester, Nov. 12 (AP)—Two books, written laboriously in long hand after the fashion of the learned monks of the centuries before printing was discovered, came to light in Worcester today as one of the few evidences of the life of Rev. Patrick J. Power, who has lain almost forgotten for 60 years in Holy Cross cemetery, Malden.

Recently reported miraculous cures at Fr. Power's grave have brought the afflicted and curious by the thousands to lay before the shrine of his headstone their supplications for delivery from pain.

Both volumes are in possession of Edmund J. Power of 412 Grafton st. Mr. Power says he is a nephew and godson of Father Power.

The books are in two volumes, leather bound, written in French in Father Power's own handwriting, and are treated on various subjects, including philosophy, chemistry, astronomy, mathematics and theology.

Probe Death of MRS. SOMERSET

Los Angeles, Nov. 12 (AP)—A post mortem examination was ordered performed today on the body of Shelby Worrall Somerset, wife of Pat Somerset, actor, who was found dead in her bed.

Although physicians said the woman apparently died of heart disease, the inquiry to determine the cause of death was decided on when it was learned that a physician was not in attendance when she died.

The marriage of Somerset and Shelby Worrall, winner of a beauty contest in a California prison, is a serious blot on the honor of the country, Senator Gerald P. Nye of South Dakota, in an article in the December issue of Plains Statesman said.

McMANUS TRIAL OFF TILL NOV. 18

Criminal Courts Building, New York, Nov. 12 (AP)—The trial of George A. McManus for the murder of his gambler associate, Arnold Rothstein, was adjourned today until November 18 because of the illness of an important State witness.

The witness is Alvin Thomas, better known as "Titanic" Thompson, and alleged to be one of the men with whom McManus and Rothstein played cards a few days before the shooting and where, it is stated, Rothstein lost heavily to McManus. Thomas is ill in a Milwaukee hospital.

One juror was sworn on motion of defense counsel James D. C. Murray and Judge Charles C. McHugh, then announced adjournment until 10:30 a. m. next Monday.

The court recommended that the boy, who was alleged to have told police he wanted the money to attend a carnival, serve three years in state's prison after he pleaded guilty to a charge of attacking Mrs. Anna Carroll, with a piece of pipe, and stealing her purse containing $5 cents.

Seizured was passed by Judge Daniel F. Dillon, of the superior criminal court.

Hint Flier Died in "Suicide Leap"

Oswego, N. Y., Nov. 12 (INS)—Medical Examiner Amos O. Squire said today his investigation of the death of Paul Wintermyer, 25, in a parachute jump at Bedford, N. Y., a month ago, has unerringly evidence which leads him to think it possible that Wintermyer was not killed accidentally, but committed suicide.

Wintermyer jumped from a plane at an altitude of 1500 feet. His chute failed to open and he was crushed to death when he hit the ground.

BLACKBURNISHED, COOLIDGE NOW PLANS HOME

By GERALDINE FITCH

Northampton, Nov. 12.—An amiable and contented man, once the silent President, sat comfortably in his old swivel chair before his old pine desk in his little law office.

The most laconic of Presidents joined leisurely of the enjoyments of his retirement, of his life in Northampton, about his dogs, his autobiography and his plans for a new home.

For Calvin Coolidge is going to have a new house. The present white frame one, where his children were born, and which is dear to him and Mrs. Coolidge through homely associations, has become too small. The many gifts brought back from six years in Washington are stored in a warehouse, as is his library. There is no more room for bookshelves.

In writing his life story, that published in book form, Coolidge found conditions difficult in the old Massachusetts at home. He smiled whimsically as he told of it. There was no definite place to write in. So he wandered about, with a pad and a pencil and a rectangular piece of sole leather which he had used as a writing board in the White House. This little inch piece of leather may some day be historic.

One thing only the former President said he regretted not having included in his autobiography. This was an appreciation of help given him by William Randolph Hearst during the dangerous days of the Boston police strike.

At the time of the strike the editor of the Boston American informed Governor Coolidge that he had received a telegram from Mr. Hearst, sent from a train in Arizona, directing the paper to give the Governor every possible support.

The co-President said he had always been deeply grateful for this support, but that in expressing thanks for other sources of support during this trying period, he had unintentionally failed to mention the co-operation of the Hearst papers.

Smarter Summer Uniform for Army

Washington, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Promise of a smarter looking army in the summer was held out today in an order issued by the War Department for extensive service tests of a new khaki colored cotton cloth.

The new cloth is developed to retain its shape without starch and is mercerized for appearance and is colored with a new dye which is considered permanent. Maj.-Gen. William Lassiter, commanding the eighth corps area, will designate four units serving in different parts of his command to receive uniforms of the new material for a year of constant wear.

LAKES-TO-GULF WATERWAY IS PROJECTED

Washington, Nov. 12 (INS)—Huge appropriations for President Hoover's ambitious scheme to link the vast middle west with the sea by development of waterways was forecast today when Representative Will R. Wood (R.) of Indiana newly elected chairman of the House appropriations committee, pledged his full support to the movement.

Wood declared the inland waterways plan offers Congress its greatest opportunity for constructive legislation to benefit the entire nation.

Close co-operation between the appropriations committee and the White House on all phases of the government's annual budget, of nearly four billion dollars was predicted in the regime of the new chairman.

Chairman Wood also announced he will urge Congress to provide ample funds to carry out the Jones-White merchant marine act which provides small subventions for American lines. He criticized the action of Postmaster-General Brown in withholding contracts pending an interpretation of the act, asserting that Congress had spoken plainly on the subject.

"The first great step in waterways, in my opinion, is the completion of a waterway from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico, thus connecting American farms and factories with South Latin-American markets," he said.

The committee, he said, would begin work next week on the presidential budget, which at this time is fixed at about $2,800,000,000, or about $111,000,000 less than last year.

"It will be my hope and endeavor to keep appropriations nearly as possible to the level of last year or below it," he said.

COOKING SCHOOL ECHOES

Better-than-ever Waffles!

Waffles? They can be the very poems of the breakfast table—if they are delicate in taste. So do not profane them with a "strong," "tasting fat." Do you know the one fat really delicate enough to give the true waffle flavor? One taste of Crisco, just as it comes fresh and sweet from the can, will tell you—unmistakably!

8 cups flour 5 eggs
5 tablespoons baking powder 1 1/2 cups milk
1 tablespoon sugar 2 tablespoons Crisco
1/4 teaspoon salt

Sift flour, baking powder, salt and sugar together. Separate eggs and add milk to beaten egg yolk and stir into dry ingredients. Add Crisco and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour by spoonfuls on very hot Criscoed waffle iron. Serve hot with honey or maple syrup.

For Chocolate Waffles, add two tablespoons melted chocolate to the melted Crisco and follow recipe above.

This recipe has been tested and approved by cooking authorities. You will get best results by using level measurements and the ingredients specified.

Taste Crisco's sweet, fresh flavor

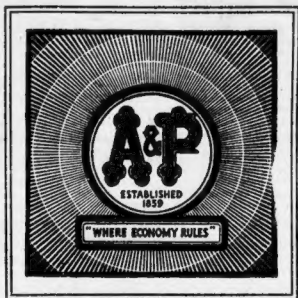

TASTE a shortening? Of course! You taste milk. You test eggs. Now, taste Crisco—then any other shortening. Then you'll understand why Crisco's extra sweet, fresh flavor so improves the taste of your cakes, pies, hot breads, cookies and fried foods.

Crisco is the registered trademark of the Crisco Corporation, New York, N.Y.

What the Foremost Bank in New England means to a Certain Argentine Rancher

"MEET Enrique Dominguez arriving by steamer Orinoco New York September 1," cables our Buenos Aires Branch.

We meet the boat, for Enrique has just passed his thirteenth birthday and speaks very little English. His father, a wealthy rancher of the Argentine and a client of our Buenos Aires Branch, has sent the boy in our care to be entered in a boarding school of our choice. We are to advance the lad his monthly allowance and keep an eye on him "in loco parentis."

A father with confidence in his banking connection—to be sure. But confidence which has been amply justified by his dealings with the "Banco de Boston", as he calls our Argentine branch.

His connection with the bank dates back to the time when he sought to establish connections with wool importers in this country. He asked the assistance of the "Banco de Boston", and was helped to make contacts which have been valuable to him ever since. Today he knows that the financing of his wool shipments here are cared for by one of the greatest wool banks in the world. He is well aware that the credits arranged by the Bank for him and for his American clients have helped to develop his business and build his fortune.

He is but one of our 125,000 customers who have learned the value of a customership with a great bank. Whatever your banking requirements, this institution has and offers facilities to meet them.

"Week-end Ensemble" Enables Woman to Take Short Trip Without Major Part of Her Wardrobe

(SKETCHED IN PARIS)

THE outfit consists of a white erpe maroon frack over which is worn a wrap-around skirt of fine black tweed. The jacket of black tweed is short and quite straight and most severely tailored—a really impeccable travelling suit. The coat comes off, the skirt unwraps, and the wearer is suitably gowned for the afternoon.

Paris Welcomes the New Two-in-One Costume

Paris Bureau of the Boston Evening American

PARIS, France, Nov. 12.—A strong excuse for a week-end! We feel sure that every possessor of the new week-end ensemble is going away at the first opportunity to discover for herself if this new outfit is all that has been claimed for it.

Laudatory reports from women who have already worn the ensemble under the conditions for which it was invented, are just now, to hand. And so we thought that it would be quite in order to send you a sketch and full description of the new two-in-one.

Capt. Molyneux designed this outfit for the woman who, obeying the dictum to "travel light," but finds it rather difficult to pack sufficient clothes for even a very short visit in one suitcase and dressing bag. But the great majority of women do not look upon life as merely a clothes parade and are glad of an innovation that will enable them to travel with a minimum of baggage and still present a charming and suitable appearance. With this premise we introduce you to the "week-end" ensemble.

(SKETCHED IN PARIS)

THE second sketch shows the dress. Inch-wide knife-pleats form the body of the long tunic and make the flounce. Although the effect is of a two-piece dress, the tunic is in reality attached to the skirt beneath the hand below the hips. The raglan-yoke and sleeves are cut in one piece.

GIRL, SUICIDE IN AIR, 'WILL' SEND WORD

New York, Nov. 12—Will the shot of Ruth Rockwell communicate with her family?

"If I find any sort of life or corresponding time after death, I will try to communicate with my immediate relatives at 9 o'clock some evening for a while," said a note left by the 20-year-old Greenwich Village girl who chartered a plane here, scared to a height of 2000 feet and then leaped to her death.

"I wonder if the newspapers will decide to devote any space to me," the girl wrote.

E. F. Booth, pilot of the plane from which the girl made her death leap, said that when they had risen to 1200 feet she motioned him to go higher.

"I felt the plane rise as if we had struck some rough air," he said, and turning he saw the door opened and his passenger's body hurtling through the air.

The suicide notes were found in Miss Rockwell's handbag, which she left in the plane.

One gave a longing for "harmony" as the reason for her act. "Everything has always been discord when I long so for harmony," it read. "Maybe yet I will find it, maybe sweet music."

Most people end their lives because something sad has happened to them. I end mine because it seems not only futile, but wrong to go on existing. I blame no one and feel that I have no enemies."

Miss Rockwell came to Greenwich last summer from the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dean W. Rockwell of Spruce St., Philadelphia. At Greenwich she lived with her brother, Donald.

Burglar in City Hall at Worcester

Worcester, Nov. 12—City Treasurer Harrod J. Tunison discovered that his office in city hall and that of the city auditor nearby had been entered, ransacked and robbed over the week-end.

The treasurer's safe, built into the wall, contained several thousand dollars, but so far as could be seen no effort was made to open it.

A .38-caliber revolver and some change are missing from the treasurer's office.

HARSH corrective measures are seldom necessary with a child! Most modern parents recognize this. That's the reason so many agree on this: proper means of putting a child in order when bad breath, coated tongue, headaches, biliousness or upset stomach of a clogged digestive tract.

When used at the first sign of bad breath or feverishness, a spoonful of California Fig Syrup often does the work! Sometimes several doses are necessary. Always you can depend on its use to clear the system harmlessly and in a hurry; to give the child a new start by regulating and strengthening the stomach and bowels.

Mothers by thousands praise the gentle effectiveness of this rich, fruity product which all children love. Mrs. Clifford A. Smith, 25 Hemingway Street, Boston, says: "Nothing I know of can take the place of California Fig Syrup in my home. It has been a blessing to my little girl during colds and upset spells. It always has her right in a jiffy."

Write like these and mine of four million bottles a year show how mothers depend on California Fig Syrup. One caution: The name "California Fig Syrup" on the carton marks the genuine, famous for 50 years.

SALE OF 10000 WELL HAMPLED IN DENMARK

Following is the concluding article of the report of Miss Josephine Gross and Archdeacon Joseph H. Dohson, members of the American liquor control commission, on their tour of inspection in the Scandinavian countries and Finland. The first article, on Sweden and the Baltic states, was published in this newspaper yesterday.

By M. LOUISE GROSS and ARCHDEACON JOSEPH H. DOHSON
In Denmark there was more than any other country, since when it was under duress, the workingmen badly declared: "No beer, no work, no water, the proposal died in its infancy."

The government controls the sale and distribution of alcoholic liquor. The light wines and beer are bought and sold without legal restriction. There is an economic restriction, such it may be termed, in the fact that the price of spirituous liquor has been greatly increased, and is quite out of the reach of the poor man who is forced to content himself with beer and light wine.

LOSS TO PEOPLE
If Denmark should ever be visited by prohibition it would be a great loss to the people, not only in revenue to the government, but many of their favorite educational institutions would be closed down because of the ending of the Carlsberg Foundation, which derives its funds from the sale of beer.

The police officials of Copenhagen all claimed that there was a tendency toward temperance among the people and a reduction of crime and drunkenness because of the absence of alcoholic restriction.

Norway never really had prohibition but in the course of the World War certain parts of the country had a limited prohibition at which time only beer was sold; light wine and hard liquor being prohibited.

In 1918 a restriction was placed on everything but 2 per cent beer. This proved so disastrous that in 1927 the government permitted light wine and stronger beer, which still did not meet the approval of the people, and resulted in much bootlegging.

There was such an increase in crime and drunkenness that in 1927 all restrictions were removed and ever since Norway has cheerfully and peacefully enjoyed light wine and beer and liquor under a government monopoly.

GOVERNMENT "CURE"
If a person in Norway abuses alcoholic drinks and becomes a drunkard or public nuisance, he is reported to the monopoly, which sends him to a sanatorium, under government supervision, to be cured of his bad habit.

After he is discharged from this institution he is placed on probation until the monopoly is satisfied that he is fit to be allowed to retail take care of himself in the use of alcoholic drinks.

Under the monopoly system the public, without any restriction, may obtain light wine and beer at the various restaurants which are divided in three classes:
First class restaurants, open from 9 a. m. to 11:30 p. m.
Second class restaurants, open from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m.
Third class restaurants, open from 10 a. m. to 7 p. m.

All hard liquor must be procured from the monopoly stores, which are open between the hours of 11 a. m. and 5 p. m. Spirituous liquors may also be procured in first class restaurants.

The country has a population of about 2,000,000. Nearly 90 per cent are native born.
The money taken in by the government monopoly through the sale of light wine, beer and liquor, pays for all the governmental upkeep and maintenance of the public health institutions throughout Norway, the hospitals throughout the land and the agricultural industry, as a large sum of money is derived yearly from this source which helps to keep down the personal taxes of the people.

Turning now to Finland, this commission made its primary investigations in the City of Abo and in the capital of the country, Helsinki. It quickly became apparent that the city has even less respect for the prohibition law than is common in the United States. The situation is truly farcical.

In a word, prohibition is simply ignored in the ancient and new capital of Finland.

end to CORNS
between toes
Those terribly mean corns between the toes that seem to defy all treatment—they're as easily removable as any other with Frezzone! A few drops of Frezzone instantly put the corn to sleep. Pore deadened at once and soon the corn becomes so loose that you can actually lift it right out with your fingers. Hard corns or soft corns—all yield to Frezzone. Why suffer when you can get relief with Frezzone!

English Jails for Sale

America is suffering from a shortage of jails, although prohibition was expected to empty them. Conditions are different in England. Archdeacon Joseph H. Dohson, whose report of liquor control in Sweden and prohibition in Finland is published by the Hearst newspapers, spent two months recently in England.

In a letter dated from London, Dr. Dohson made interesting commentary on some results of England's failure to adopt prohibition. He wrote:

"It is strange that while prohibition America is obliged to build more jails, yet England finds drunkenness decreasing and her jails emptying. As a result, since 1914 no fewer than 24 jails have been closed. In most cases the buildings have been sold; many of them have been demolished. These jails were located in large towns, such as Newcastle, Cardiff, Belfast, and Glasgow. One jail now on the market is that of Warwick. It cost $400,000. The government offered it to the Warwickshire County Council for $100,000. Refused."

Vice-President Curtis Named in Lobby Plan

According to the record, which purports to give plans of the South-ern Republican council, said "the negroes in Southern Republican circles are being organized and their support is being secured through the election of negro Democrats to Congress from St. Louis, Chicago, Harlem and other colored districts." It added that "this matter is in capable hands."

The letter under Arnold's name was addressed to the Hon. C. M. Field, a field man of the tariff association. The presentation of this letter, Chairman Caraway added, would if he had assisted in organizing the Southern Republican council which was projected, Caraway added, would be to "in line" southern states. Arnold testified he had nothing to do with the formation of the council.

The letter as placed in the record read:

"I went with the darling today to see Vice President Curtis. He thought well of our negro congressional delegation. It was a matter that should be taken up with Mr. Hoover and that he would talk with Hoover about it."

"They all seem to want to get Hoover's idea about it first. Curtis said he thought of getting a better class of negroes to lead in the south, but I told him that would be the complete remedy."

"Our line of approach is much more acceptable to politicians and to negroes of standing in the south, the Democratic party than the line of approach of the white party; the negroes will go to work over the plan of kicking them out of the party or of leadership."

Field in Arnold's file revealed the aims of the proposed council. It read in part:

"This organization plan is designed to hold in line those Congressmen who bolted their party and voted for the Republican presidential electors in the 1928 elections."

"The carrying of four Southern states for Mr. Hoover in no way can be considered as a Republican victory. While these Democratic voters are outside the Democratic party they are not yet ready to come affiliated with the Republican party as now constituted in the South."

"It was proved during the recent campaign that the Hoover Democrats of the South preferred their own contracts with national Republican leaders and would not function with the regular party organizations in the South."

"The council, if organized on a high plane and offered by outstanding citizens of the South, both Hoover Democrats and Republicans, can be made the instrument for building up a real Republican party in the South."

WOULD ELIMINATE NEGRO.
"The council should be reorganized by the administration and through its Southern leaders afforded contact with the party in power in Washington."

"For the present the council should be organized on a high plane and offered by outstanding citizens of the South, both Hoover Democrats and Republicans, can be made the instrument for building up a real Republican party in the South."

WIFE ACCUSES HAVEMILL MAN IN DIVORCE

Lawrence, Nov. 12.—Christie Brown, a Havemill business man, attempted to drown his wife, Virginia C. Brown, 27, in a bathtub, according to her testimony at a hearing on her petition for divorce.

Mrs. Brown told Judge Dowd in Falls Probate Court that her husband entered the house and, after forcing his way into the bathroom, pushed her head under water and held it there. She said she would have died but for Mr. Brown's cry, a sister, who rescued her, told her to get out of the house.

Mrs. Brown said her husband left a charged cruelty, he said she was should confine its activities to the policies of government. Patronage matters should probably rest with the regular party machinery in the South until the council has been thoroughly organized and its support is being secured through the election of negro Democrats to Congress from St. Louis, Chicago, Harlem and other colored districts."

The plan was divided into the following 10 sub-divisions:
1. Leadership, protective tariff, sound taxation, food control, Southern representation in Congress and cabinet, elimination of negroes as a political factor, revision of election and registration statutes, managerial plan for city and county governments and southern states, district, county and precinct committees.

Women Have Something to Say! AN ANCIENT PREJUDICE HAS BEEN REMOVED

AMERICAN INTELLIGENCE has ridiculed into oblivion that ancient prejudice which excluded women from a voice in council. To-day, in millions of homes, the delicious flavor of LUCKY STRIKE fills the room as the family group respects the opinions of its women folk.

"toasting did it"
Gone is that ancient prejudice against cigarettes—Progress has been made. We removed the prejudice against cigarettes when we removed harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from the tobaccos.

YEARS ago, when cigarettes were made without the aid of modern science, there originated that ancient prejudice against all cigarettes. That criticism is no longer justified. LUCKY STRIKE, the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the choicest tobacco, properly aged and skillfully blended—"It's Toasted."

"TOASTING," the most modern step in cigarette manufacture, removes from LUCKY STRIKE harmful irritants which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way.

Everyone knows that heat purifies, and so "TOASTING"—LUCKY STRIKE'S extra secret process—removes harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from LUCKIES which in the old-fashioned manufacture of cigarettes cause throat irritation and coughing. Thus "TOASTING" has destroyed that ancient prejudice against cigarette smoking by men and by women.

"It's toasted"
No Throat Irritation—No Cough.

SIX SENATORS' TICKIES UNDER BLANKET OF SNOW

Washington, Nov. 12.—Six members of the Republican senatorial committee, of which Senator Moses of New Hampshire is chairman, are considering resignation from the committee in protest against Moses' designation of "Western Republican tariff coalition" as "house of wild jackasses," a Capitol report said today.

The senators are Vandenberg of Michigan, Townsend of Delaware, Hatfield of West Virginia; Thomas of Idaho; Herbert of Rhode Island; Patterson of Minnesota.

These senators were more incensed over Moses' tag for their Western colleagues than were the already alienated Western group. Vandenberg discussed developments in the party split with President Hoover's secretary, George Akerens.

President Hoover, it is understood, desired to keep informed of developments, as he is seriously concerned over the widening rift in party ranks, which may have some bearing on prospects of his reelection in 1932.

Political observers here already are counting up its possible influence in 1932. Out of the success of the right Western Republicans and Democrats have made upon the administration's tariff bill has emerged a leader, Senator Borah of Idaho, who always has had a large following.

Borah has nothing to say to all the gossip about the possibility of his leading a coalition ticket in 1932. The Idaho senator, it is pointed out, has stayed with this tariff fight longer than he has with other senatorial movements he has started.

Killing Is Revealed by Boy's Nervousness

Chicago, Nov. 12 (AP)—Nervousness displayed by 15-year-old Freddie Nette at school led to his arrest for questioning and later to his being held for the killing of a hunter on his father's land Sunday.

Statements by the boy led police to the backyard of the Nette farm, where they dug up the body of a hunter.

All have been gone when suddenly an airplane swoops down and the sky is alive. Later Guy Elliott knows that takes that for the air ride. Happy days follow, with Fat and Guy in love. Then comes Barbara with shadowy eyes. Later, while air-riding with Guy, Fat has a glimpse of Barbara in another plane.

Now Go on With the Story

CHAPTER 3

THAT one, hurried footsteps, then silence as though someone moving along the hall now stealthily halted. Guy glanced at his watch. Ten minutes to 10. At 10 the night watchman made his rounds.

He went over to the wall and listened.

Anyone leaving the building from this wing would have to pass his door. Anyone coming from the inner office where the safe stood and where the week's payroll was deposited each Friday night, could make a getaway, only through this passage. Bryce's door had a direct exit, but it was padlocked from without, and it led into the open space. Not a tree or building. A man crossing that space could be seen for blocks.

Silence. The clock on the wall ticked oppressively in the quiet. Then again that muffled, uneasy sound. This time Guy felt certain someone stole down the passage.

He glanced at his door, and with a shiver noticed that light had been switched. It was on when he entered the building half an hour ago at night that light was always on.

He reached for his pistol, took a swift, noiseless step, pulled the door open. The sudden light caught a black shadowy figure that sprang: came springs with wild, first trated great full on Guy. Shouts rang. Guy went pitching against the wall, went reeling into blackness. The sound of flying footsteps followed through the dark.

In a daze Guy picked himself up, felt all was dark, queer, stinging, agonizing. A trickle of blood, light flashed in his face. Two men ran for the night watchman and another.

"Where'd he go?" in brere "Him out!"

They tore back to the road, whirling darkness, shadows, swinging flashlight about.

All at once they shouted; they began shouting. A third figure leaped across the road. Came a plop. In the darkness a third man dropped.

"He got him! Quick!"

The watchman ran to, their lights trained full upon him. Bud they called "Bud" they called.

The wounded fellow was creeping along the ground. The third man pulled the mask from his face. The flashlight showed it right. Light—man's face. A black, burning, bewildered eyes. These eyes looked about with staggering, furious hate.

They went back with shock. "Good God—Tom—YOU!"

Tom Burns looked in wild bewilderment from one to the other. Suddenly he recognized Guy. He raised on his elbow and with white, shaking lips: "YOU! Stopped me! Damn You! I'd have made it!"

His voice rose and choked. All at once he clapped his hand over his face and began to sob. Then they saw his eyes. The ambulance. Guy got his coat and threw it over the man.

Tom Burns was shot in the thigh. The wound was slight. As for Guy, the bullet had merely grazed his neck.

At the Emergency Hospital they were treated. And here they tempted Tom Burns's pockets. They took from him $100 in currency—money that had been deposited in the safe of the Bryce-Billott offices.

The stack of notes lay on the table in Guy's view as the police took his story.

In two weeks Tom Burns recovered from his physical wounds. He was brought in to court to stand trial for burglary and attempt to kill.

Guy went to William Bryce. "You're not going to prosecute?"

"Have arrest? What is it to me? I'm not the State. This is out of my hands."

"But we can get him out of it. We can show all the circumstances."

"Oh you damn fool! You've a fine chance to show extenuating circumstances if you were dead. He tried to kill you. Do you realize that?"

"It'd be dead if he had really shot to kill. He didn't. He had me dead to rights. His shot was continued on Page 21, Column 2

STATE HOUSE LOBBY CLEAN UP URGED BY BACON

Policemen's Ball Gives Medford Burglar a Bad Break

Where Two Women Escaped Death

Photo shows the auto driven by Mrs. John A. Winslow of Mattapan, accompanied by her sister-in-law, Miss Alice Winslow, which skidded on Needham st. near Causeway bridge and plunged into the Charles river. The car skidded 25 feet, and rolled into a shallow spot in the river. A passing motorist aided the two women to wade ashore to safety. The water reached the seats of the car. It was recovered. PAIR ESCAPE IN AUTO PLUNGE

Mrs. John A. Winslow of Mattapan, and her sister-in-law, Miss Alice Winslow, escaped with nothing worse than a wetting when their automobile skidded on Needham st. near Causeway bridge, and plunged into the Charles river.

The skidding car traveled 25 feet across the gravel side of the embankment, and dropped into the river, stopping at a shallow spot where the water rose to the seats of the car.

A passing motorist stopped his car and hurried to the aid of the two women, opening the door of the partially submerged automobile and assisting them to safety. They were able to wade to the embankment and then to their homes. The car remained upright and was removed from the water later. The water was only three feet deep where the car went into the river.

Brookline Residents to Fight School Site

A controversy is expected to erupt at the Brookline special meeting, over the article asking $45,000 for purchase of a site for the new Lincoln school.

The school committee selected a site on Walnut st. but residents of the neighborhood are planning to offer considerable opposition.

Youth Unable to Find His Parking Spot

A 19-year-old boy who came to Boston from Rockland in his brand new automobile to get a taste of metropolitan "whoopie," trudged the alleyways and by-ways of the South End in a fruitless search for the spot where he had parked his car in the morning.

Showing signs of his weary search, the boy, David De Simone, 18, of East Water st., Rockland, appeared at the East Dedham st. station and told his story to the police.

Bright and early in the morning, he said, he left home in his machine and arrived in Boston just in time for the parade. Before he could find a suitable place to park his machine he had driven into the heart of the South End.

Somewhere south of Dover st. a narrow street which appeared to be but little traveled appealed to David as an excellent parking place so he drove in, locked his machine and left it there. After an exciting day of city life, David returned to the South End to get his car.

But the parking place could not be found and police, try as they might, could offer him little assistance.

THREE INJURED IN BUS CRASH

Three passengers in a small sedan, injured when the car was in collision at Commonwealth av. and Chilmark st. with a bus bound for New York, were in a serious condition today.

The most seriously injured was Miss Ethel Hannon, 26, of Westland av., located knee and possible fracture of the pelvis.

The others were Miss Mildred Boulger, 16, of Warren st., Roxbury, and Lys King, 22, Hennyway st.

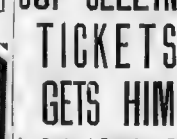

The car is owned by Eugene A. Boulger of the State Sanatorium at Rutland, and was operated by his son, Joseph Boulger, who escaped injury, although the car was overturned.

HUB BANK BUYS INTO TRUST CO.

The Federal National Bank of Boston has acquired a stock interest in the Bancroft Trust Company of Worcester, although not sufficient interest to give it control, according to Dennis J. O'Connell, president of the trust company.

There will be no change in the officers, directors or personnel of the Bancroft Trust Company, O'Connell said.

COO SEIZING COCKETS GETS

Is Captured Escaping From Owner of Looted House

The breaks were all against William Richards, and now he'll probably never buy a ticket to anywhere but the police station.

In Malden court today Richards was held in $10,000 as a burglar-burglar with $275 cash on his person, in addition to two watches and a diamond ring.

Richards, who gave his age as 26 and his address as Elm st., Worcester, had the first break against him when Joseph T. Bahr of Myrtle St., Medford, broke home unexpectedly.

In the ensuing flight Richards got another break when he was sprawled over a hedge in the way of the house and Ballard sprang on top of him.

Even then things weren't so bad because Richards was on his way to freedom again, when who should arrive at the Ballard home but Patrolman Michael H. Brown, hopeful of selling a ticket to the police station.

Patrolman Brown took a hat in the driveway and placed Richards under arrest.

In addition to the Ballard home Richards is alleged to have entered the home of Harry G. Tidd, an of Myrtle st., where a watch and diamond ring were taken.

Unitarian Clergy Favors Dry Law

An almost total one preference for prohibition and a nine to one opposition to the repeal of the State prohibition enforcement law was the result of replies from Unitarian ministers of the country to a questionnaire sent out by the Unitarian Temperance Society, Boston, last week, the society announced.

The questionnaire was sent to 100 Unitarian ministers and replies were received from 122. To the question "Are you in favor of national prohibition?" 92 replied "yes" and 31 "no." On the question relative to repeal of the State concurrent prohibition laws, 11 voted "yes" and 105 "no."

To Resume Drive for Library Fund

A drive to secure the balance of a $650,000 building fund for the Boston Medical Library, part of which will be used to establish branch medical libraries throughout the State, will be renewed immediately.

One-third of the fund was raised last year and the remaining two-thirds is expected to be subscribed before Christmas. The fund is expected to provide for the erection of an addition to the present library building to take care of 100,000 volumes for which there is not proper shelf room at this time.

Auto Hits Man Crossing Street

While crossing Tremont st. at Arlington av. William Cooley, 61, of Laconia st., was knocked down by an automobile, suffering serious injuries to the head and face. He was taken to the City Hospital where his name is on the danger list.

He was hit by a machine operated by Dominic Vichio of Leyden st., East Boston.

SPANIELS HOLD WATER SUPPLY BENCH TODAY LOW IN SALEM

An abundant rain alone will prevent drastic action by Salem and Beverly officials to protect the water supply of these cities. "Salem lake, the source of supply for these cities, is now more than 10 feet below normal level. Legislation authority has been shown these communities, under certain conditions, to pump water from the Ipswich river to Wenham lake. The diminishing water supply is expected to influence early action toward construction of a surge reservoir in the Putnamville section of Danvers to fortify the needs of these communities.

Although Middleton pond is lower than usual no fears are expressed for the water supply of Danvers as Swan pond is available as auxiliary supply.

Many wells are dry in outlying sections of Middleton and "creeks" are obliged to haul water several miles.

SENATE HEAD FORBID ON OBVIOUS

Fres. Bacon Urges Campaign to Oust "Agents" on Bacon Hill

A cleanup of unscrupulous lobbyists and agents who infect the legislative halls of Bacon Hill was urged today by Gaspar G. Bacon, president of the Massachusetts Senate.

Bacon's appeal, coming on the heels of the lobbying disclosures at Washington, was delivered at the opening session of the state senate in the Senate Chamber.

The day's list of speakers, in addition to Bacon, included Governor Allen and Speaker Leverett Saltonstall.

At the outset of his remarks Bacon said all lobbying is not necessarily improper, as persons seek elected by the highest of motives and render valuable assistance. But, he pointed out, the real danger lies in the difficulty of separating the good from the bad advisers.

To many persons he contended lobbying has come to mean "secret" or "underhand" pressure upon such members for selfish or improper purposes, and involving even threats and intimidation and other unscrupulous methods.

"And it is generally believed that it is usually the powerful organizations who hire representative to promote or obstruct legislation which affects them, regardless of the desirability or undesirability of such legislation from the point of view of the public," he stated.

It is this kind of influence that must be stopped so far as it is carried on in the State House over which we have complete jurisdiction.

The Senate president, after referring to a law provides for the registering of lobbyists and agents who appear at the capital for bills, said the existence of a "third group," he said, under the presence of gratuitous service, dodges the lobby law and gains admission to the floor of the legislature in its activity in seeking to influence legislation on "piping matters."

"No regulation can compel any person to admit that he is an agent, lobbyist or lobbyist," he said, "and it is impossible to make a distinction between a citizen or a spectator, and a lobbyist. He may contend that he is a lobbyist, and he may be a lobbyist."

As a consequence, our legislative halls are flooded with such persons who solicit votes, influence legislation, and in some cases, some of them perhaps gratified, who do not register, and who do not hesitate to use every device to influence the chamber floors. The privilege of the floor, which should be extended solely to invited guests, is thus being abused.

"At the last session, many times number of those who registered were actually engaged in influencing legislation."

It seems, therefore, that the practice of lobbying through agents, whether good or bad, should be discontinued. Personal solicitation should be before the chamber for disposition is not necessary. The bootlegging of members in the halls often reacts against the earnest solicitor and does more harm than good. No one should be allowed to continue the activities to proper channels in the open and by degrees we shall cut down to the minimum the pernicious practice of secret solicitation.

"We must, therefore, make our appeal to the forces of public opinion."

4 CHILDREN SAVED, NINE FIREMEN OVERCOME IN MEDFORD FIRE

2 FAMILIES FORCED TO STREET

Girl, 19, Helps Father Bring Other Children From House

Four children were led through flames and smoke to safety and nine firemen were overcome today as a two-alarm fire swept through a two-story dwelling at 11 Cushing st., Medford, menacing a thickly settled residential district.

The flames, starting from an undetermined cause in the basement, swept to the roof of the dwelling before they were checked.

Mrs. Alonso Rae, asleep on the second floor of the building, was aroused by the crackling of flames and found her bedroom filled with smoke. She aroused her husband, who in turn awakened their five children.

Aided by their daughter, Dorothy, 19, and Mrs. Rae assisted their children down the stairs to the street. The other children are: Alonso, Jr., 3; Wayne, 18; David 16.

The first floor of the building, a wooden structure, is occupied by Mrs. Carrie Newcomb, 80, and her husband, who was rushed down the stairs, and also burned in the street.

Hoseman George Harris, attached to Engine company 1, had a narrow escape from death when he was overcome in the cellar of the dwelling.

Harris had gone into the cellar when a line of hose and his absence was not noticed until several minutes after the dense smoke had filled the room.

The rescue party was organized by fellow firemen, who found Harris propped up in the cellar, clutching the nozzle at his nose.

He was carried to the old-water, where efforts to revive him were unsuccessful. Then he was rushed to Lawrence Memorial Hospital. It was announced there that his condition was serious.

George Forrester, attached to Engine 4, collapsed in the building and was carried to city.

J. C. Ross, another fireman, was overcome in the cellar. He was taken to the hospital. Six other firemen were temporarily overcome and revived on the scene.

The flames, racing through the roof, shrankled adjoining buildings with sparks, and firemen were forced to maintain a close watch to prevent them from spreading.

Lost schooner in tow

Given up for lost, the two-masted schooner, Strom, today, looking badly her hull blown away and her supply of food and water exhausted, was brought into Boston today by the Coast Guard cutter Mojave.

She was 35 days out of Bridge water, N. B. on a voyage to Vineyard Haven when the Mojave found her 300 miles off the Maine coast, her crew of four in dire need.

The Coast Guard had abandoned a search instituted two weeks ago and the Mojave found the schooner after her position had been reduced to Washington by the Comber, a slighter vessel which had been flying distress signals. She will reach Boston tonight.

Transfer Prisoners to Fitchburg Jail

The old jail at Fitchburg which has been closed for a long time was reopened today to take care of an overflow of prisoners from Middlesex county House of Correction, East Cambridge.

Officers Lewis Bateman and Ralph H. Woodfall took six prisoners from East Cambridge to the jail in Fitchburg today, this being the first confinement. On account of the crowded condition at the jail at East Cambridge, Middlesex county officials have leased the Fitchburg institution.

How Leonard Crashed to Death a Mystery

By GEORGE HAMILIN

What caused the plane accident in which Billie Leonard, premier commercial stunt pilot, lost his life at the Marlboro air meet may never be known, according to Federal Inspector Jack Moran of Worcester.

It's just one of those things where a good pilot goes West, and we are wondering why and how it happened," said Inspector Moran.

Leonard had been stunting most of the afternoon, and this was the final windup of the day's program. Taking off in formation with George Watkins, chief pilot for the Massachusetts Airways Corp., of Springfield, the two boys, both flying Argo sportplanes, climbed to 2000 feet.

"Dog fight," chasing each other around the sky in ever tightening circles.

When the crowd had really begun to think the boys were fighting in earnest, Watkins was seen to straddle out of the vicious circle and fly along straight.

Then Leonard put his ship through a couple of stunts, and followed with a full spin from 2000 to about 1500 feet.

SHIP ACTED QUEERLY

Coming out of this spin, he executed what might be called a "falling leaf" down to 1000 feet, from which he was to come into a voluntary left-hand tail spin, starting in very slowly.

But he executed the first turn and a half, and it was then that the plane came out, and the ship started to wind up in an alarming manner.

The announcer on the public address system started to say that Billie would snap the ship out of its spin after he passed the 100 foot mark, but the sentence was never finished.

have you heard it?

Kellogg's RICE KRISPIES

When policemen and a newspaperman arrived at the ship, they found the plane lying within ten feet of a house bordering the airport, and with two automobiles within 10 ft. of the nose of the ship.

A doctor pushed his way through the crowd and went with Billie in an automobile that started off to the Marlboro hospital, but never arrived there, because Billie had died before he could be lifted into the machine.

Previous to the tragic ending of the career of America's premier commercial stunt pilot, he had even the four thousand or more spectators the greatest stunt show they ever had seen.

With the joy of flying the Argo coursing through his system, he made two inverted loops, the first he had ever seen, and which ranks second only to the outside loop as being the most dangerous stunt known to aviation.

FIN.COM. RAPS EAST BOSTON TUNNEL PLAN

Terminal is an "Extravagant Waste of Money," the Board Rules

The Boston Finance Commission, in a communication to the City Council, today denounced the present plan for the proposed East Boston tunnel.

This communication, signed by Chairman Frank A. Goodwin, was in reply to a series of questions submitted by the council on an order of Councilor John I. Fitzgerald.

The Finance Commission declared that the plans originally prepared by the Boston Transit Commission were superior to those afterward approved by Mayor Nichols.

It pointed out that the present plan provides for a circle at the Boston terminal, which would require the taking of valuable land, an "extravagant waste of the taxpayer's money."

The communication also pointed out that if the tunnel was straight instead of curved, as planned, traffic could be handled much more rapidly and efficiently. The commission added that the portals and viaducts were not in the most favorable location.

Considerable reaction to the attitude of the Finance Commission is expected.

"Rambling Ruth" of Malden Goes Again

"Rambling Ruth" McGrath, seven Russell st., Malden, whose penchant for running away is well known to the authorities, is at large again after having been in custody of the Back Bay police for a time today.

Ruth, bareheaded and wearing a white sweater and plaid skirt, made her way by riding on trolleys and buses, into Boston and was found by a messenger boy in the Back Bay.

Me took her to the station and officers gave her toys to play with while they were busy answering telephone calls.

She suddenly disappeared and she had slipped quietly out of the station house, and a city-wide search for her was in progress.

Mary E. Ricker, Lynn singer, and Albert Torrey, Lynn and Ipswich rancher, arrested in an Ipswich camp Sunday morning, in Ipswich court today were held in $1000 each for a hearing Nov. 23.

They were charged with a statutory offense, and an additional charge of carrying a loaded revolver without a permit was lodged against Torrey.

It was claimed when the reading party, led by Mrs. Torrey and consisting of a constable and police officers, entered the camp Torrey pointed a gun at them.

2 Barred From Flying by Parker

Registrar of Motor Vehicles George A. Parker today suspended the right to operate aircraft with Massachusetts of Paul I. Christie, 217 Harvard st., Brookline, and Bud Osborne, Ritz Carlton Hotel, Los Angeles, Cal.

The registrar states that both men operated airplanes in a dangerous manner at the Boston airport, following a take-off as the result of operating in a negligent manner.

The inspector says, used poor judgment in practicing landings which led to a crash after he had covered the runway and landed twice.

Police Janitor, War Vet, Too Busy to Hang Out Flags

Thomas Ryan is a war veteran, but he was too busy on his janitor's job at police headquarters that he couldn't get to see his buddies parade Armistice Day.

He also was so busy that he forgot to hang the flags out at headquarters.

Police efficiency was greatly raised today when Police Commissioner Wilson, who saw the parade, ordered Ryan transferred to the Mills st. station.

The commissioner noted the absence of the flags when he returned from the parade. His chauffeur, Clarence ("Ty") Cobb, then hung them to the breeze.

Unbeaten East Boston Eleven Plays Hyde Park Today

BEATING AMERICAN SPORTS

SHOCKED AT LOSS

AT WIG WAM

An undefeated East Boston high school eleven has a tough assignment this afternoon, for, minus several of its stars, it plays Sky Sherlock's Hyde Park team at the Wig Wam, at 2:30.

Hyde Park has been beaten this season, but only by very small margins, and it is going after a win in the first minutes of a game this year, and the team wants to run up some kind of a score in the early periods to insure a victory.

East Boston is under a big handicap for some of its best players are on the bench on account of injuries. The boys who are not likely to play today are Charley, Cyril, Corrado, Larkin, and Delmont. Charley is the leader in the team which beat Brighton a couple of weeks ago. He is the regular right half back of the East Boston eleven, and his absence will weaken the team.

Capt. Corrado is the fullback at East Boston, a good line blunder and defensive back. Larkin plays the eleven, and has been a big reason for the success of the team.

Hyde Park has a fighting sound that never gives up until the final whistle. Dordick, center and front, Kiefer and Tranchesi in the back field are fine gridders. Hyde Park must battle to hold off a defeat this afternoon.

Tomorrow Gronow plays at St. Mark's. Here is a good line school war. Gronow has a good line and backfield. St. Mark's is a heavy team, but they have improved considerably during the past few weeks. The two teams are evenly matched and the winner of this play will know it has won a ball game.

Charlestown plays South Boston at Braves Field tomorrow. South is undefeated and has a good line and backfield. Charlestown can give the Bruins a hard afternoon of it. The game should be close.

ITS HARD TO CARRY A BALL AND A PLAYER, TOO

This unusual action photo shows Hill of Mechanics Art high climbing right up the back of Krivitsky of English high after the latter has caught a fumble. Krivitsky, one of his mates came up and recovered it. This photo was taken at Braves Field, where the teams played a 6-0 tie.

Harvard is also a strong defensive back, and takes care of the kicking department for Holy Cross in great shape. The team which was saved especially for this coming fall, the fans expect to see him at the top of his form against the Contests.

The Contests will also have the Yale tilt in view as they go into action against Holy Cross. Those on team A will want to insure their positions by a good showing Saturday, and the Harvard boys will want to make the best of any opportunities to shine that may come.

Harvard probably has full strength against the Worcester team. While some of his team will be out of town watching Yale and Princeton, their little setback in the Bowl, enough of the regulars will be in the Harvard lineup to make it more than a B team game.

Art Hagley may be service in the coming Crusader tilt, but it is not entirely certain that Harwood will risk sending his starter back to work so soon.

RECORDS OF FORESEEN

Some relief from the gloomy outlook in the building trade is heralded by Alexander Hamilton Institute. On the basis of past experience, building activity next year should be not much further below the low level of 1929 and may possibly experience the beginning of a recovery which should carry building to a new peak in 1931.

The chief favorable factor in the outlook is the downward trend of the building trade since the beginning of the 1920's. The downward trend of rents which characterized the depression from the middle of 1924 to the beginning of 1929 is still at the bottom of the scale.

There are some factors, however, which are likely to be of considerable influence on building recovery. In the first place the prospective curtailment of purchasing power next year will be a hindrance to the building trade. Homeowners will have a reluctant attitude. Manufacturers will hesitate to expand and the building industry will have a reluctant attitude. Manufacturers will hesitate to expand and the building industry will have a reluctant attitude.

TO MY POOR way of thinking, there are three colossal artists of the microphone who, in their own right, make radio what it is. They are, and it's hard to say which ought to come first, White, Moore, and Davis. White, Moore, and Davis. White, Moore, and Davis. White, Moore, and Davis.

Britain Greet Russia

Why Do Not We Do Likewise?

REFUSAL of the United States to resume diplomatic relations with Russia is unworthy of American democracy and slightly bad for American business.

Great Britain has just resumed relations with Russia, and the Progressive Labor Government of Ramsay MacDonald has been upheld in that intelligent action by a vote of 324 to 199 in the House of Commons.

This means that Great Britain and Russia will exchange ambassadors immediately, negotiate a settlement of all differences between the two nations, and enter into a new trade agreement.

All of which will enhance respect for British democracy the world over and be of incalculable benefit to British trade with Russia.

It is not the fault of Prime Minister MacDonald that his conversations with President Hoover did not include the Russian situation.

Russia was not upon the agenda of questions whose discussion Mr. MacDonald was given to understand would be welcome.

Simultaneous recognition of Russia by Great Britain and the United States would have greatly promoted the peace of the world.

And American trade relations with Russia would not have been subjected to the additional handicap that will now result from the failure of Washington to co-operate with London in this vital task.

As late as last August, the Hearst newspapers urged the resumption of diplomatic relations between Russia and the United States for the following reasons:

"As long as we keep a stone wall between Russia and ourselves, there is little opportunity for the Russian people to learn the truth about democracy as contrasted with tyranny.

"As long as we shut off all intercourse with Russia the Russian people must remain ignorant of the lessons that our democracy can teach them, and continue under the yoke of that tyrannical and fanatical minority known as the Soviet.

"Far from weakening the Soviet Government, our childish failure to recognize it is one of the main reasons why it remains in power.

"And by refusing to recognize the Soviet we are seriously injuring American business.

"The Russian people are in dire need of American business brains and American business capital to develop the vast, untapped resources of their great country. But because of our silly fear of treating with Russia direct, AMERICAN BUSINESS MUST NOW SNEAK IN AT THE BACK DOOR WHEN IT OUGHT TO BE WELCOMED AT THE FRONT DOOR."

Now the progressive action of the MacDonald government opens the front door of Russia to British business.

But the blind refusal of the Administration at Washington to face the facts in Russia, or follow the wise counsel of Senator Borah, or the enlightened example of Prime Minister MacDonald, keeps the front door of Russia closed to American business.

And until our famous boycott against Russia is ended American business must continue to sneak in at the back door of one of the largest and richest markets in all the world.

It is about time the Administration at Washington consulted more the wish and welfare of the American people and less the desires and interests of the international bankers who have claims against the Russian Government.

Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

QUESTIONS coming at set of sun
When tasks are through:
What share of the good you might have done
Did you find to do?
Can you fall asleep with tranquil mind
And buoyant mood,
Knowing your words were wholly kind,
Your deeds were good?
That lad who smiled when you passed him by,

Did you smile at him?
Did you give to the beggar or did you deny
On a sudden whim?
The friend who came to you, asking aid,
Did he seek in vain?
Did you lend with vault by the word dismayed,
Back to hope again?
These were the chances that came your way—
How great, how small—
And a question he, you at close of day,
Did you grasp them all?

Don't Be a Rainmaker!

Why wear goloshes when it's dry,
And with a raised umbrella run
Beneath an almost cloudless sky,
And under such a brilliant sun?

Why hurry when the weather's grand,
Or be so foolish when it's plain
That gloom is self-made shadow, and
That deluge is synthetic rain? —N. H.

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

WE are indebted to the freshest of Senate inquiry for putting the finger on Mr. Grundy of Pennsylvania.

For 30 years we have been passing a chimney in Pennsylvania. On that chimney was the name Grundy in fireproof brick.

Which is about the way Mr. Grundy acted in the senatorial spelling bee. He tossed them his signature in bricks.

During his spare hours he spares nobody. He is head-tobolst of the high-tail band.

Being from Pennsylvania, an alert state that had a shyster lawyer a century about of the other forgership, Mr. Grundy feels like the largest of the five Great Lakes.

He says that backward State should not have two senators. He calls Idaho a moss-covered snore because Borah comes from there.

When Senator Walsh (Montana, no moss) requested Mr. Grundy to apologize to the people of Idaho, Mr. Grundy would:

"It isn't my fault that Borah comes from there."

If Idaho and Arizona are backward States it may be due to the early immigration from Pennsylvania and the East.

Mr. Grundy is crouched up because Western platitudes show no inclination to protect the industries of Pennsylvania. Senator Blaine (Maine, all right) asked of Mr. Grundy:

"Would you call Utah a backward State?"

"No," said Mr. Grundy (Pennsylvania, would), "Utah is dead pretty well."

Mr. Grundy (Pennsylvania, would) didn't say why he thought Utah was not backward. Probably because the Mormons came from there.

"Is California backward?" asked Senator Borah (Idaho and an ass-throat on the subject) in purring emphasis.

"I should say not," Mr. Grundy whined. "Mr. Borah don't come from there."

And that's where the investigation simmers. We hope for Mr. Grundy's sake that his beautiful chimney doesn't.

H. G. Wells Writes on "The Science of Life"

In Collaboration With Prof. Julian Huxley and Geo. P. Wells

THE simplest item in his consumption is the water he drinks, either pure or with various coloring, flavoring or stimulating additives.

Well, we now know the atom has an extremely complicated structure, but the fact remains that an atom is the smallest quantity of an element that can go into intimate combination.

A "molecule" still means the smallest quantity of a chemical substance that can exist separately.

It may consist of from one to a vast number of atoms of the same or different elements, but there are large molecules as well as small ones, the largest molecule is still ultra-microscopic and minute beyond our everyday imagination.

A water molecule contains three atoms: a molecule of common salt, but in many of the substances we shall next deal with the atoms may run to thousands or tens of thousands.

In these discussions on digestion we are always hearing the terms carbohydrates, fats and proteins. Carbohydrates and fats are two classes of organic compounds made up of carbon, hydrogen and oxygen.

They differ from each other in the proportion of these three elements that they contain: in carbohydrates there are two atoms of hydrogen and one of oxygen to every carbon atom (hence their name for water is H₂O), while in fats the proportion of oxygen is less.

They differ also in the pattern on which the atoms are fitted together. The best-known carbohydrates are sugar and starch. The term fat as used in physiological discussion includes the vegetable oils (such as olive oil) and the animal fats (such as lard).

Water is continually being lost from the body. It evaporates from skin and lungs, and it is used also to flush away the waste products of cell activity. To make up for this loss a vast amount of water is needed.

Life without water is about as conceivable as music in a vacuum. As Sir Arthur Shipley says in his attractive little book "Life," "Even the Archibishop of Canterbury comprises 99 per cent of water."

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

LIFE, without the ONE man or the ONE woman who loves you and understands, is like chafing over the telephone with nobody at the other end of the wire.

Just as we always leave something behind in every hotel room we vacate, so we leave something of ourselves behind in every marriage we abandon, and a few of our illusions in every love-affair we check out of.

There are times when a disgruntled wife can't help thinking what a "sympathetic husband" her lawyer would make.

This country is going "antique" its furniture goes as far back as Queen Anne, its architecture dates back to Colonial days or the early Spanish, and its morals, its love-making and its manners appear to have been revived from the Stone Age.

A man may not need any woman's shoulder to weep on. He may be strong enough to bear his own burdens, keep his troubles to himself, do his own cooking and mix his own cocktail medicine. But he MUST have somebody to help him admire himself, believe in him and amuse him! And only a woman can do that!

Divorce was once just an antidote for domestic suffering; but now it is becoming a "prescription" which some women have filled and the men have refused to take.

Nature is good to women, when she blows the star-dust of desire into a man's eye, so that he can't see where he's going when he's heading for matrimony.

The most wearisome task of a woman's life, these days, is waiting for the mating life to penetrate the top-shell of a man's mind sufficiently to take root.

Some men struggle out of a love-affair, others crawl out of it, and others just "check out" of it, with perfect nonchalance.

A Good King and His Skull

It Was Crowned With Gold From America

(Copyright, 1929)

THE SKULL OF ST. WENCESLAS, BOHEMIA'S KING, DEAD ALMOST 1,000 YEARS.

HERE is a picture of which youth and age might meditate, and preachers might preach good sermons.

It shows the skull of St. Wenceslas, the "Good King" of Bohemia, as it is today.

A few days ago, in a great celebration at Prague, this skull, preserved for almost a thousand years, was brought from its resting place and crowned in all honor with a golden diadem sent for the occasion by Czechs living in America.

What was once Bohemia is now Czechoslovakia. The good St. Wenceslas, ancient king and patron saint of Bohemia, is now the patron saint of Czechoslovakia. All the Czechs venerate him, and do him great honor.

He became king of Bohemia exactly 1001 years ago. Seven years later, on September 28, 835, he was murdered by his brother Boleslav.

Many kings, good and bad, had their careers ended by murder, and often brothers ambitious for the throne were the murderers.

You see here the complete skull of the old king and saint, minus a few teeth. There were no good dentists in the days of this king, no good toothbrushes either. Teeth did not last.

"The hateful road of old age" of which the father of Hector complained to Achilles, was even more hateful before fangs, good dentistry, and well made eyeglasses and scientific cathartics came to prolong youth and to comfort.

This isn't exactly a cheerful picture. Even the wise DISLIKE the thought of death, while the foolish DREAD it.

But it is a picture to make even the thoughtless think a little.

Kings and peasants, rich and poor, the great and the nobodies, we shall all be like this in a few years.

All the reason for doing as much useful work as possible NOW, while our eyes still look out of the bony sockets, and words still come, for good or evil, from the bony mouth.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. MINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Many popular theatrical road players seem unable to make the grade on New York's Radio. Yet they open here year after year, last with a week or so, and depart for "a tour of the tanks."

They never lose hope of eventual metro-politan recognition.

In nearly all cities westward they have distinct followings and many of them are talented performers.

Why they do not receive the Manhattan plaudits is one of those unspeakable "how-does-it-happen" questions that often hover over those who give their life to the theater.

I think as I write of such entertainers as Frank O'Hara, William Hodge, Walter Whitehead and a few others whose names escape me.

Such players are often unable to rise above the stigma of what is called "theater."

They are always denied. Yet they are always denied. Yet they are always denied. Yet they are always denied.

Music Notes: A symphony orchestra conductor ate a pint of banana ice cream before facing an orchestra.

And for ice creamists who have not tasted peppermint ice cream a large evening lounge or I'm not the fool for ice cream I used to be. Plain old country peppermint instead of a sob. What we need is a thick cream, mixed in with thick cream and frozen and—Oh, lady!

My favorite ice cream dispenser attached to a Times Square drug-out. When he sees you really enjoy your dish—an expert can tell by a certain odd gleam—he scoops up another dab to put on your plate. A fellow like that it is not only a boon to humanity, he's an angel in civility. What I'm trying to say is—he's swell.
